(6870) Communications from the Administration

President Anderson discussed Brooklyn College’s mission to serve the students of Brooklyn, especially those who have been historically left out of higher education, and to act as an engine of social mobility. She then provided updates about end-of-semester events, including a recent a meeting of faculty, deans, and directors about fundraising, the staff advisory committee meeting, a reception sponsored by the LGBTQ center to celebrate its new director, a holiday brunch for faculty and staff, and the Committee Master Planning’s plans for an open town hall on the budget. She spoke about winter and spring enrollment and retention and discussed how faculty can help with retention, including one-on-one engagement with students, the use of EAB Navigate, and participating in prospective student tours. She referred faculty to the one-page information sheet with this information, as well as contact information for student support.

President Anderson then spoke about the awareness campaign for prospective students, which includes a new virtual campus tour, a newly redesigned website, social media, and advertisements.

A discussion about the following ensued: Brooklyn College’s social media campaign; resources and support for updating departmental webpages; the audience for the website; Brooklyn College’s commitment to diversity and its recruitment and support of black students; balancing investment in the promotion of Brooklyn College and in college infrastructure; funding challenges in public higher education; the heat problem on campus and possible strategies to address it; resources for emergency maintenance, including those from CUNY Central, and ways of navigating responses to emergencies; the master plan for facilities; and the context for the emergency maintenance issues.
